ERECTION ALL RISKS INSURANCE - EAR

Construction projects are technically high complex and present a large variety of risks

In the course of execution of a project for erection of machinery, plant and metallic structure of any kind, many risk events could occur resulting in serious loss or damage, as well as additional liabilities could arise in respect of third party claims for property damage or bodily injuries.

Erection All Risks insurance provides broad coverage during assembling, erection and testing/ commissioning of new machinery, plant and steel structures, involving little civil engineering work.

Use an experienced broker to get the quality cover you need. Use our services. We can build tailor made policies around your unique needs and work with major insurance providers to acquire the appropriate cover at competitive quotes.

What does Erection All Risks Insurance cover?

This insurance covers all types of risks involved in the erection of machinery, plant and steel structures of any kind. In addition, the insurance offers protection against the third-party claims in respect of property damage or bodily-injury arising in connection with the execution of an erection project.

Why you need an Erection All Risk Insurance?

Construction works can face delays and unforeseen challenges that can severely impact the entire construction and erection project. As there is always the potential that something adverse can occur, you should be prepared for the risks involved by such a project. Standstills and the temporary suspension of work on any project can lead to serious economical losses.

The EAR insurance provides the coverage you need against financial losses arising from physical damages or civil liabilities during an erection project.
